

Test Yourself

Associating Phrases

Write next to each of the sentences on the left a title of an essay that is connected with them in some way.

1. Upon arrival, Levi soon found that his two brothers had exaggerated their tales of an easy life in the land of the main chance.
2. They'll lend us their cups and silverware for a party.
3. For weeks I awoke crying from a recurrent dream in which I chased him, urgently trying to get him to read a document I had, as though reading it would protect him from what had happened in waking life.
4. Can we expect a decent society if the state is allowed to kill its own people?
5. The purpose of the law should be to protect society, not to inflict cruel retribution.
6. A correction officer entered the witness room and announced that atria run of the machinery would be undertaken.
7. He believed himself to be one of the greatest dramatists in the world, one of the greatest thinkers...
8. The frightening rise in crimes of violence throughout the country has caused more and more well-intentioned people to arm themselves.
9. I can barely get through this week, and on the weekend I do not ever the strength to get dressed.
10. It soon became clear that we not sure what we meant by such terms as thought and thinking.
11. They were never laid off, never short of cash at month's end, never lived for welfare.

12. The green trees, the trimmed hedges, the cropped laws grew very meaningful, became a symbol.
13. We will soon enter a checkless and cashless society.
14. Despite progress in society's understanding of death and dying, thorny issues remain.
15. The large mammalian brain is the most complicated thing for size known to us.
16. Much better we work our way out of it on our own, without governance.
17. I do not personally think it is to be dishonest, brutal or unethical in order to succeed.
18. There's no sense trying to do a job if you have other things on your mind.
19. The first rule is simple: perform every act as if it were the only thing in world that mattered.
20. The irony is that we need decisionmakers who care and understand about children and private lives.
21. It was the girl with the bags and the stony gaze.
22. I was afraid they might think I was too fat, too shy, too ugly, ... or even too dumb to bother them.
23. Indulgently, I lifted my right hand and made scissoring motions with my first two fingers.
24. Communities could use these savings to support institutional to deal with young people not in school.
25. It's OK to be greedy.